

Satellite radio is a wonderful new addition to the distribution of information and entertainment. Rather than listening to mindless commercials, nitwit talk show hosts, political lunatics taking calls from illiterates and sports jocks who can neither speak english correctly or who just want to argue with the next imbecile that calls, I find Sat. radio a true oasis in a sea of blather. Nothing should stand in the way of sat. radio's ability to communicate with subscribers. Perhaps commercial radio should take a chapter from sat. radio's book and offer something worthwhile for a chance.
